

KILLING OUT GAME IN BUCKINGHAM

Greedy Hunters Ruining Supply by Going Over Ground as With Fine-Tooth Comb.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Arlington, Va., November 22.—For the past three weeks hunting has been carried to such an excess in this section that the game are stop those who seem to have but little moderation in the matter. Every day crowds of hunters may be seen in the fields and woods throughout this end of Buckingham, some fields being hunted over daily for several weeks. It is becoming a question whether there will be enough game left over to begin another season with.

At the opening of this season there was apparently abundance of game, partridges being particularly plentiful, with turkeys a close second. However, two or three weeks before the season opened pot-hunters and poachers began killing young turkeys in the Peninsula section, where many turkeys annually grow, and law-abiding sportsmen threatened to report them to the authorities and have them prosecuted, but, yet no cases have been brought to trial.

Habits were plentiful in October, but intensive hunting with bound hounds has served to thin them out perceptibly. The boys who have set traps contend that the hunters keep the rabbits going so fast they cannot stop to get in the traps.

Several years ago, before the large timber was cut from this section, squirrel trapping was exceedingly plentiful, but in more recent years they have been scarce. This year, however, have been an exception in the matter. Thousands of the little animals seem to have originated from somewhere, and early in the season, when nuts and acorns were upon the trees, many were killed.

Deer seem to have left Buckingham to a large extent. In the southern section, some years ago they raised in herds, and as many as four or five could be found together; now there is hardly a deer to be found anywhere in the county. In Cunningham they seem more plentiful and now and then tracks may be found in Cluywana.

Burned grouse or "pheasants," as they are called here, are still to be found in densely wooded tracks or thickets, but are difficult to bag, owing to the vagaries and speed of their flight, as well as to their secluded haunts.

This season the usual number of rabbits was caught by the greedy hunters and others who enjoy soon hunting at night with its attendant hardships. Geckos, groundhogs, and other small animals appear to be as plentiful as usual, though there is still some trapping of the fur-bearing.

No geese and ducks have as yet appeared upon James River or nearby ponds in this section. They are expected in January and February, as is the custom with them, wintering on the river bottoms and grazing the bay and wharves.

OPEN HOUSE ON NEW YEARS.
Cabinet Ministers Probably Will Follow
Old Custom.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, November 22.—Cabinet ministers probably will follow the example of Washington in holding their house on New Year's Day, despite the determination of President Wilson to do away with this practice.

To-day Secretary of State Bryan announced that he for one would observe edlers on this New Year, and other members of the official family are expected to follow suit.

Couper Dangerously Hurts.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
San Jose, Cal., Nov. 22.—Earl Couper, driving a Stutz car, plunged through the fence at the San Jose Driving Park late this afternoon and was dangerously injured. He was known to be a consistent and cultured young man, and his wife, who was riding beside him, also received injuries. One of his hands was badly cut and several bones were broken. He was removed to the Women's and Children's Hospital, where Dr. M. P. Hopkins is attending him.

MILITANT IS NOT AFRAID OF ARREST

Despite Prospect, Mrs. Pankhurst
Will Return to England on Wednesday.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, Del., November 22.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette, who spoke here to-night, declared she would return to England regardless of the reports that she would be arrested as soon as she returns.

When Mrs. Pankhurst was asked if she were not afraid the English police do not arrest Sir Edward Carson, who is drilling men in the north of Ireland in the spirit of Ulster, she replied: "I am not afraid of Sir Edward Shaw, who has defied the police to arrest him for urging armed resistance against the brutality of the London police."

"It seems to me that men are licensed to kill and women are not," declared Mrs. Pankhurst. "Yet one would think we were not fit to arrest men who have the vote and women who have not."

Mrs. Pankhurst expressed herself as much pleased with her trip in the United States and says she found the equal suffrage movement growing throughout the country.

Mrs. Pankhurst will return to England on Wednesday, sailing from New York to Plymouth.

TO INSTRUCT MILITIA

CAPTAIN A. M. SHIPP, U. S. A.

NEW INSPECTOR ASSUMES DUTIES

Captain A. M. Shipp, U. S. A., Will Aid in Instruction of Virginia Militia.

Captain A. M. Shipp, United States Army, assigned by the War Department as inspector-instructor of Virginia militia in place of Captain Parcells, transferred elsewhere, has arrived here to assume his duties. Captain Shipp is a son of General Scott Shipp, superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute, and has made a high record in the army. The photograph published herewith was taken in Manila, while he was on duty in the Philippines.

Captain Shipp has opened headquarters at the offices of Adjutant-General of the State, in the Virginia Railway and Power Building. It is his purpose to make a thorough tour of inspection of the various infantry commands of the State. While no definite orders have arrived, it is open to the Adjutant-General and the War Department, inspecting officers are keeping the State militia in a high state of efficiency, so as to be fully prepared for any contingency that may arise out of the strained situation in Mexico.

Captain Shipp is well known in Richmond, and has friends throughout the State, having graduated at the Virginia Military Institute before entering the army.

Life was nearly extinct when physicians arrived, and no hopes whatever were entertained for saving his life. However, a message to the Durham Traction Company office brought a pug-motor to the scene. The machine was put to work and late in the afternoon the injured man was better.

The pole on which Crabtree was working, is the same on which Robert Biggs, a linesman, was electrocuted last year.

ARCHDUKE'S VISIT IN KING GEORGE DEPRESSES QUEEN

Citizens to Say Whether They Shall Spend $10,000 on Road Improvement.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]

London, November 22.—Queen Mary has not enjoyed the much-heralded stay of Archduke Ferdinand at Windsor Castle during the past two weeks. The archduke is a great sportsman and his stay has been marked by his skill in the field of the hunt.

Lord Thomas of Quantock, chairman of the Queen's Household Committee, said: "The Queen is not pleased with the archduke's shooting. His Majesty is a great sportsman and his skill in the field of the hunt is very remarkable."

The archduke has been staying at Magdalen College, Oxford, and has been shooting with the Queen's household staff.

He has been staying at the Queen's residence, the Queen's House, in the Queen's Park, and has been shooting with the Queen's household staff.
